RESCUE NOTES.

Colonel Cox, by way of illustrating how thoroughly Rescue Work is appreciated by all classes, relates the following incident:—

A Rescue Officer who had one night been engaged in the Piccadilly Midnight Work was just about to enter Ludgate-hill station on her return home, when a policeman crossed the street and spoke to her. With shining eyes he told her how the Lord had saved his soul some five years previously, and of the great love He had placed in his heart for perishing souls. He went on to say:—

"The Lord uses me in some strange and wonderful ways now, and I have some beautiful opportunities to serve Him. Why, only a month ago I got a girl to leave the streets here, and sent her on to your Mare-street Headquarters, but I don't know how she is getting on." "All right, you may be sure, or she would be back in her old haunts," replied the Major. With a mutual hearty exchange of "God bless you," the officer and policeman parted, the little incident having been the means of much encouragement to the tired and weary officer, who went on her way rejoicing.
