THE SECRET SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF GOD

By COLONEL S. L. BREngle

SOME time ago I heard of some one who had joined a secret society, and that set me thinking about the ancient and honourable 'ORDER OF THE SONS OF GOD', to which I belong — the secret 'Brotherhood of Loving Hearts', the 'Grand Master' of which is the Man Christ Jesus.

There are a number of fraternal orders in the world, with possibly some useful qualities, but not being a member of any of them I am not able to pass favourable or unfavourable judgment upon them. They may do good, and be good in some respects for men of the world who crave fellowship and long for a sense of security which comes from a union with others; but as for me I am so abundantly satisfied with this Order to which I belong that I cannot think of joining any other, lest I lose some of the glory of this. As compared with this, every other looks poor and narrow and paltry to me.

Initiation into this Order is open, and it usually takes place down at the penitent-form, with some saintly soul pointing the way in prayer and introducing us to the Grand Master. There is no 'riding the goat', there are no doubtful vows, there are no associations that are questionable.

Sometimes secret orders of the world are recommended for the fraternal sympathy they show to their members, but in this Order to which I belong I find the tenderest and most unfailing sympathy. Some time ago I visited a dear comrade who had just lost his wife under most painful circumstances, and sat with him in his office, when he took down a big bundle of letters, which had come from all over our country and from foreign lands, and, looking into my eyes, while his own brimmed over with tears, he said, 'Oh, Brengle, where could I go to find such sympathy, or to what other institution could I belong that would pour upon me such a tide of brotherly love as I have been receiving here?' We are often so busy, and our comrades
