The Field Officer

Liberty Through the Holy Ghost*

THERE is in Colonel Brengle's new book a great deal of information, as well as inspiration, for the Field Officer. We hope our comrades in the Field will get the book, study it, and keep it for constant reference. Meantime, we may take advantage of its pages to give a few extracts which will assist them in their work.

The Baptism of the Holy Spirit

What is The Army teaching about the time and order of the Baptism of the Holy Spirit? It is, of course, to be found in The General's books, and the Chief of the Staff has explained it with admirable clearness in many Meetings at which Field Officers have been present. But Colonel Brengle sets out Army doctrine in a way which is decidedly useful. Here are some illuminating quotations:—

There are four classes of teachers whose views appear to differ about this subject. There are:—

(1) Those who emphasize cleansing; who say much of a clean heart, but little, if anything, about the fullness of the Holy Spirit and power from on High. (2) Those who emphasize the baptism with the Holy Ghost and fullness of the Spirit, but say little or nothing of cleansing from inbred sin and the destruction of the carnal mind. (3) Those who say much of both, but separate them into two distinct experiences, often widely separated in time. (4) Those who teach that the truth is in the union of the two, and that, while we may separate them in their order, putting cleansing first, we cannot separate them as to time, since it is the baptism that cleanses, just as the darkness vanishes before the flash of the electric light when the right button is touched; just as the Augean stables were cleansed, in the fabled story of Grecian mythology, when Hercules turned in the floods of the River Arno; the refuse went out as the rushing waters poured in.

Colonel Brengle goes on to point out that there are very blessed portions of Scripture which show us that this is God's order, and others that plainly show us that cleansing and the baptism are not separate in time.

What patient, waiting, expectant faith reckons done, the baptism with the Holy Ghost actually accomplishes. Between the act of faith by which a man begins to reckon himself 'dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord' (Romans vi. 11), and
