All the difference in the world

The church is a body of people gathering together and scattering out into the world. Despite being a minority, we can make all the difference in the world.

Bombed church in Odessa, Ukraine, the weekend

How long before You drench the barren land?

How long before we see Your righteous hand?

How long before Your name is lifted high?

How long before the weeping turns to songs of joy?

Romans 12:1

So here's what I want you to do, God helping you: Take your everyday, ordinary life - your sleeping, eating, going-to-work, and walking-around life - and place it before God as an offering. Embracing what God does for you is the best thing you can do for him.

Less than 6% of people in the UK go to church once a month or more. Gathered, that feels few, but scattered out in the world Christians influence and connect with many people around them.

Red dots in a sea of grey.

Christians are a small minority in our nation in these times. Less than 6% of the population currently go to church once a month or more – six red dots in a sea of grey ones. The reality, however, is that these red dots, these people of God, are out there in the world, Monday through Saturday. – traces and voices of grace for thousands of people. This is the church in mission on the frontline. And if the scattered church is to grow ever more fruitful in mission, Monday through Saturday, we must embrace the gift of gathered church to fuel this. We're convinced that our nations will never be reached until we create open, authentic, learning, and praying communities that are focused on growing whole-life disciples who live and share the gospel wherever they are.
